

We claim:

1. In a system for automatically extending stabilizer legs of a vehicle to support the vehicle in a specific orientation, the improvement wherein the system includes controls for elevating the platform while maintaining the platform in the specific orientation.
2. The improvement of claim 1, wherein the specific orientation is a level orientation.
3. The improvement of claim 1, wherein the system further comprises controls for automatically lowering the platform while maintaining the platform in the specific orientation.
4. The improvement of claim 3, wherein the specific orientation is a level orientation of the platform.